What Guides Our Approach

- Healthy outcomes require holistic resources like housing and financial security.
- Unfair differences in outcomes call us to work differently, together.
- Healthier mothers and babies strengthen families and communities.
- Community Health Workers serve as a bridge and help people reach their goals to thrive.
- The Pathways HUB Model is proven to improve outcomes and reduce costs.
- Collaborative partners work together to create greater impact.

» From miscarriage to motherhood. After multiple miscarriages, a participant joined the Pathways program. With her CHW's help, she built trust with healthcare providers, overcame cultural barriers, and learned new strategies to manage her health. The result? A healthy pregnancy.

Along the way, she also received support for rent, utilities, and food security, while gaining valuable knowledge through our health education modules to improve her family's well-being.

How the HUB Model Works

The Pathways HUB connects partners, care teams, and Community Health Workers to support families every step of the way.

PARTNERS

Healthcare providers, community organizations, government agencies, and funders strengthen the system through referrals, collaboration, and investment.

PATHWAYS COMMUNITY HUB

Coordinates the network, tracks progress and quality, and ensures families' needs are addressed.

CARE COORDINATION AGENCIES

Local organizations employ Community Health Workers and coordinate services for participants.

COMMUNITY HEALTH WORKERS

Meet people where they are, connecting them to services and support to reach their goals.

FAMILIES

Receive personalized support to address health and social needs for healthier pregnancies and stronger outcomes.

Our model is proven to improve outcomes and reduce costs by coordinating care, increasing access to health and social services, and addressing the factors that shape family and community well-being.

» A pathway to support. A young mother, aging out of state care, had no maternal health resources before the HUB. Her CHW helped her navigate housing, the WIC program, and finding a doula.

Now, with her baby delivered, she's focusing on employment and mental health as she steps into motherhood.
